

Community Transformation

“ I understand what it feels like to be unemployed. I understand what it feels like to be homeless. I know what it feels like to be discouraged... ”

Once Sherina Bledsoe moved into Jordan Downs public housing in Los Angeles, she gained stability and began to work her way toward a brighter future. She successfully applied for a job with the Jordan Downs revitalization, where BRIDGE and partners are rebuilding the distressed housing and transforming the community through services such as job training and employment.

“ It feels good to be able to help the residents who are in need of jobs, because I was one of those people. ”

To watch Sherina’s full story, visit <http://bit.ly/bridge-sherina>