

With the boost of a Stein Scholarship from BRIDGE, Shane Allen was able to complete his undergraduate degree. He maintained a 3.9 GPA while juggling a part-time job and a family. Shane went on to earn a Master's in neuroscience from the University of Pennsylvania and now works as a project manager in the clinical trials field. He and his family live in Northwest Arkansas, where they plan to build a home. Shane credits BRIDGE and the scholarship for a large part of his success.

“ Programs such as this are hugely important in helping people with dreams of a better life... Having a helping hand during those times when you need it most goes a lot farther than most people realize. ”

Norman DePover was living on the streets until 2011 when he moved into his new home at BRIDGE's Coronet property in San Francisco.

“ What The Coronet means to me is more than just a building. It's the people that make up the heartbeat of The Coronet. We can be human. We can be ourselves. I've found home. ”

Norman continues to thrive here with the support of our partnership programs such as the Institute on Aging, a leading advocate for seniors.
